Ethan Jones: Racist Recruiter and League of the South Member in Cartersville, Georgia

Over the course of two years, Ethan Edward Jones of Cartersville, Georgia has gone from posting racist memes on the internet and fantasizing about the Confederacy, to membership in the white nationalist League of the South (LOS) and writing regularly for racist Southern secessionist websites. Jones is currently in his final year at Woodland High School in Cartersville. He is not only a prolific propagandist, urging others to join LOS, but he celebrates violence by white supremacists. Since Jones is now an adult and is deeply entrenched within the white nationalist movement, we are publishing this information to alert those around him.

Ethan Edward Jones

Ethan Jones operates under a number of online aliases. For example, on Facebook he is “Richard Ewell” – a reference to the Confederate general Richard S. Ewell – while on Twitter, Jones is “Georgia Nationalist”/@RichardEwell4. Jones’ accounts on various social media platforms have similar friendship circles, imagery, and propaganda style. Often, Jones uses images of white supremacist politicians for his profile pictures: Eugene Talmadge, a three-term governor of Georgia, is a favorite.

We first encountered Jones' online presence in 2017, when we were looking at the fascist American Vanguard / Vanguard America in our state. We noticed an Instagram post endorsing Vanguard Georgia (i.e. Vanguard America in Georgia) but containing the hashtag #Redshirtmovement. At the time, Ethan Jones was using several Instagram accounts to promote the “Redshirt Movement” and “Georgia Redshirts”. The “Red Shirt” name referred to late-19th Century white supremacist paramilitary groups in the South. Although there were “Redshirts” Instagram accounts for several states, Jones’ Georgia accounts were particularly energetic, mixing Confederate imagery, posts celebrating Georgia white supremacist politicians, and pictures of 20th Century fascist movements.

While Jones was posting “Redshirts” content in 2017, he was not very savvy about what he shared online. Eventually, some of the photos Jones posted of himself on private accounts began circulating more broadly. As recently as 2018, Ethan Jones’

“Georgia Nationalist” Twitter account followed a number of Woodland High School (WHS) students, often members of the Class of '19 – this further supports the identification of “Georgia Nationalist” and related accounts as WHS student Jones. Further, one old Instagram from his cluster of accounts included the phrase “Bartow County Redshirts” in its bio. We discovered that years earlier as a young teenager, Ethan Jones had a fantasy life based around an imaginary gang called the Bartow New Confederates, the Bartow Yankee Killers, or the Bartow Communist Killers – this was clearly the same person responsible for “Georgia Redshirts” a few years later. Sadly, Jones is now completely immersed within the white supremacist scene, and his activity can no longer be written off as playacting.

I'm not leaving the League anytime soon. My loyalty and hopes and confidence still lay with the League of the South. I have full trust that the League will hold true to its original values and mission of a Free Dixie. In my past almost year in the League , albeit I have been unable to do any activism, I've seen mass progress. I've played a very very minimal part in the LS , especially compared to some of its bravest front line guys, due to limits in my life but I will continue to advocate and promote the League and it's mission. Hail Dixie and Hail the League.

2018 post by Ethan Jones about his membership with the League of the South

In late 2017 – just as his “Redshirts” period was drawing to a close – Ethan Jones joined the League of the South, a white nationalist and Southern secessionist organization whose ideology is increasingly close to neo-Nazism. Jones joined LOS only a few months after the 2017 “Unite the Right” rally in Charlottesville, Virginia, where the LOS was at the forefront of street violence. It is clear that Jones is impressed by the LOS as a potential fighting force, even though in reality LOS’s capacity has diminished since Unite the Right. In his April 11, 2019 recruitment article for the League of the South, “Put on the Blackshirt”, Jones celebrated the “gallant men” of the League of the South, who took on the “Communist hordes” in Charlottesville. In an October 2018 post on the Vkontakte social network – written as Jones’ one-year anniversary with the LOS approached – Jones stated that he was “committed to advocate and promote the League and it’s [sic] mission.” The post was accompanied by a photo of graffiti stating: “Be a man among men – League of the South” and including a Southern nationalist Cushman flag. Jones may have left this graffiti in or near Cartersville.

Jones celebrates League of the South violence in Charlottesville, Virginia

Beyond his LOS membership and social media activity, Jones' main contribution to the racist movement is submitting articles to two websites that combine Southern secession and white nationalism, "Identity Dixie" and "Southern Revivalism". Jones began contributing articles to Identity Dixie in March 2018, beginning with a series celebrating Eugene Talmadge. Since then, Jones has been a regular contributor to Identity Dixie, submitting articles on topics such as race-mixing "white harlots" during Spring Break, or lauding the "united Southern resistance to integration." In one article published by Identity Dixie in August 2018, Jones advocated for a “mass [white nationalist] event at Stone Mountain using only Southern styled optics”, claiming that “Antifa will be much less of a problem due to the anti-mask laws.” A few months later, “Rock Stone Mountain” white supremacists called for a racist rally at Stone Mountain Park outside Atlanta, but their efforts collapsed entirely with the denial of a rally permit by the Park and due to determined anti-racist organizing. It is unclear whether Jones’ article partially inspired the “Rock Stone Mountain II” debacle, or whether Jones was merely putting forward a proposal that had been circulating more broadly in the white nationalist scene.

The entire national establishment are sending its arrows of destruction down on Dixie. For those who haven't been paying attention to the events unfolding in Virginia I think it's about time you do. We are seeing mass chaos and back stabbing taking place in the once great Dominion State. The land of Lee, Jackson, Washington, and Jefferson is under the rule of a weak spineless class of cowards and quislings. Why is it like this? Well, it's quite simple, we lost the War. The whole reason we seceded in 1861 was to prevent the Yankee control of our land; to stop the radical abolitionists and their Federalist allies. Both of these two groups, which were usually one in the same but not always, are now holding the keys to power in Virginia and the nation as a whole. Radical egalitarian zealots who have long since moved on from abolition and on to other various godless isms. The federalists seek to devour and take more power for themselves and away from everyday

One of Jones' articles on "Southern Revivalism", recruiting for the League of the South

As well as working with the Alt-Right/Southern nationalist "Identity Dixie", Ethan Jones has contributed over one hundred pieces to "Southern Revivalism", another racist and Southern secessionist website which launched last year and appears to be run by a friend of Jones' in North Carolina. In his "Southern Revivalism" articles, Jones offers revisionist histories of the resistance to Civil Rights, endorses Georgia Governor Brian Kemp as an alleged defender of Southern values, encourages readers to join the League of the South, and defends lynching. (You may not want to click on that last link – includes lynching scenes.) In addition, Jones' articles are drenched in hatred of Jewish people, feminists, and sexually-active unmarried women.

Ethan Jones defends white supremacist murderer James Alex Fields Jr. after Fields' Virginia conviction, December 2018. (Post from Gab website, popular with racists and far-Right.)

Jones' constant white nationalist and Southern secessionist propaganda, as well as his glorification of racist violence and his membership in the League of the South, should concern those around him. We have mailed two hundred flyers to Jones' neighbors, informing them of the militant racist in their area.

ALERT: RACIST AGITATOR IN YOUR COMMUNITY

Ethan Jones

Meet Ethan Edward Jones, who lives at 1493 Mission Rd SW in Cartersville and is in his final year at Woodland High School. Jones is an active white nationalist and a member of the notorious League of the South racist group.

The League of the South was responsible for some of the most intense violence at the bloody "Unite the Right" rally in Charlottesville, Virginia in 2017 – Ethan Jones is clear that he supports this violence. Jones also wrote that the white supremacist who murdered an anti-racist and injured dozens of others in a vehicular attack that day "did nothing wrong."

Ethan Jones (as "Georgia Nationalist") praises brutal assault by League of the South members.

Jones is an active propagandist for both the League of the South and other far-Right racist projects, regularly contributing to white nationalist websites under his pen name "RichardEwellofGeorgia." Jones networks online with key white power organizers throughout the South.

Since Jones has become entrenched in the white supremacist movement, is a member of a militant white power organization and jokes about violent acts, we believe that he may be a threat to those around him. Warn your friends, neighbors, and others in the community.

See our website for further information on Ethan Jones. If you have further information on Jones or other racist organizers in our region, please get in contact.
